Story 039

An old lady was giving directions to her grown granddaughter, who was coming to visit with her husband for Christmas.

“Come to the front door of the apartment complex, and you will see a big panel at the door,” she said.

“With your elbow, push button 12R and I will buzz you in. Come inside, get in the elevator and, with your elbow, hit 12. When you get out, my room is on the right. So, with your elbow, hit my doorbell,” she explained.

“That sounds easy, Grandma,” replied the granddaughter, “but why do I have to hit all these buttons with my elbow?”

The old lady rolled her eyes and said, “You’re coming empty handed?”

Story 040

A week before Christmas, a lawyer saw a man detained in a police station. The lawyer walked up to him and asked, “What are you charged with?”

The man replied, “Doing my Christmas shopping early.”

“That’s no offence,” said the puzzled lawyer.

“It is if you did it before the shop opened,” said the man.
